Updates

I am going to tell you some things about what has happened recently. First, let’s cover the inn. The inn was pretty normal, except for some interesting missions. Some of the most noteworthy of these is the mountain the volcano spirit is making, which sibira thinks is some weird spell, the forest spirit singing along the greenwall, which is also probably another spell, and builders/wisps just wandering off in the forest and not coming back. Sibira also told us that the barrier between scapes was breaking, the greenwall was fixing it, and something probably in the ruins of tez’ch’tatl (which might have something to do with court of darkness influence there). Anyway, we decided to help the swamp spirit (see some of my other chronicles) and, since it was on the way, investigate the forest spirit singing. First we ran into the forest spirit singing. The forest spirit was singing something about people coming to the forest and serving the forest spirit. Also, they were shadow fairies that were charmed by the forest spirit and were protecting it while it was singing. Anyways, after the forest spirit left, the party moved to the swamp spirit, after a few left and a few joined them. At the swamp, we didn't see the spirit at first, but what we did see was a lot of fairies that included red, green and shadow, though, like always, there were less shadow fairies. However, after the shadow fairies were losing badly, the swamp spirit appeared and absolutely destroyed the other fairies. After a talk, the party went back to town with the swamp spirit. They did encounter the forest spirit, a few green fairies and charmed black fairies, and a size 3 green elemental on the way back. After a lot of fighting and the shadow elemental (who by the way joined the party on the way back) murdering the green elemental, the forest spirit and the swamp spirit actually kind of made peace. This all for now, but remember: anything can happen when your foes are 2 godlike beings that have been around since the first era (don’t ask how we know that).