Wow, today was intense. I should probably introduce myself- my name is Starling Sage Tuck, but I'm just Starling. We went on a couple missions. We protected the mountain beasts that we had tamed from the bandits and we also went to hunt down the bandits and vigilantes. I hope to create deeper friendships while in Valcion and possibly even stay. I think possibly I can make friends or maybe even a found family of sorts? There was one thing that happened though, this other guy, I don't actually know his name but he's our party's cartographer. He decided to say horrible things about me and Chris- a friend and fellow adventurer- and he decided to put those things in every form of news in Valcion. I do not hold a grudge against him but it seems strange that he is still angry at me. I hope this resolves itself soon. In other news I believe- or at least I hope- that me and Aster are becoming better friends. I can read thoughts and I may have read his thoughts but I told him after and he was okay with it, it was strange. It seems like he finds me approachable yet mysterious. Chris seemed off today, Chris was upset and I couldn't read their thoughts, instead they put a wall up inside of their mind and they can't- or possibly don't- talk. I think they're just tired because they said they're not mad at me. That's about all I have today but until next time,
Starling