Record of Oracles, Late Tenthmoon-Early Eleventhmoon

'It's like a normal seeing. But then, something happens, something that shouldn't happen, something goes wrong. you feel like you are falling. Like you are lost, and then, you hear a voice "Beware the mountains, the lake, the river, beware the mountains, the lake, the river," again, and again, and again, then it shifts perspective, it used to be an echoing loud voice, now it is right next to you, whispering that same thing, over, and over again, then, loud again, it says, "heed me, heal me, then, you wake up, and unlike most rituals, this one, instead of taking minutes, it has taken hours, it is almost midnight'

- players account of a seeing about the lake.

After the first seeing, when you try to connect with it, it is already ready, almost like it was waiting for you. You are drowning, negative one, negative two, and then you realize you are feeling what the lake is feeling. You see a fishing line, except there is no rod, and it's pulling loose and starts to fray. Then. It snaps, and there is a HUGE explosion. You see a river, a river of lava, and then you see an empty cup.
- Player's account of following seeing.

mountains are bleeding into a burning river, but it is not glowing red, it is purple, and it's flowing into the lake. the lake, as usual, is bubbling.

- Player's account of following seeing.