hey everyone, this is the random person you know as: Atalathon the II
So, today was a very "eventful" day we went to grab some wood from the forest because our innkeeper said they thought that the vines despised fire, (more on that later) so we decided to do just that, we survived on the way, and then we got there, and we were able to harvest 6 pieces of healthy wood, and then all hell broke loose, people went down faster than you can blink, and some people left, and thorin and I went down last, but either way, we both died, luckily, we were able to resurrect and go back in, but we also had to get our gear, so that added difficulty, and this time, I died again trying to get my stuff, amongst which was the family heirloom, and AGAIN we were lucky because the group of people that made it out decided to come back in again and take everyone out, and then, due to Nigel's funky orb blessing he was able to regen touch the people that they had dragged out (me included) and then we went back in AGAIN, and were able to get everybody out THIS TIME FINALLY. the end.
Warm regards, Atalathon the II.