Zet!Ubar Chronicle 2

Only weeks have passed since I began adventuring in Lakeshore. I feel it proper to write home about it. Father, the world is just as dangerous as when you left the Colorwoods. I did not believe your stories, but now I see that adventures are not for the light hearted. I think you were wrong that those that adventure are complex.

I find them so simple.

The word childish is not the right way to describe them, yet it comes to the forefront of my mind. I suppose I cannot make harsh judgements after being with them less than a month. I will update you if my hypothesis turns out to be wrong.

I know you to be wanting my thoughts on each person. I wish I could deny that I have made notes on most of them. You know me too well. Do not deny that you are also too nosy.

Aeliana:

- Childish, yet intelligent.
- It would be a good idea for me to befriend them as they know much about the others in our group.
- They have great connections to people in Lakeshore and likely people would listen to her needs.
- She has feelings for another in our group named Calix who seems to reciprocate them. I doubt if Aeliana continues to act like they are 10 relating to her feelings that it will work out well though.

Beau:

- One of the more energetic in the party we have gathered.
- Very arrogant and believes they are better than others.
- Their impulsivity is a danger but it will be fine as long as others can keep them in check.
    - Though, I doubt they will listen to anyone they have not deemed worthy of their respect.

Calix:

- The more mature of the lovers. They have a clear past with Aeliana. Perhaps childhood friends.
- Quite down to earth. I took a hike with them and they are more in tune with nature than many of the rest.

- I doubt I can befriend them easily as they seem closed off and not trusting of many.

Gouda:

- A dwarf who became a rat. They were a chef. Or still are a chef?
- High intensity yet friendly. I doubt they would betray anyone.
- Simple can be nice and this rat can prove it.

Gideon:

- A professor at the bard school. They also had something to do with the leyline tap that caused the Arc. There could be a lot to learn from them if I wished to spend the time.
- They refuse to tell much about their involvement in the leyline tap and request ingredients. Arrogant and perhaps less important than they believe they are.

Coppers:

- A storyteller. They seem to have a consistent sickness. They have had some strange interactions with others from what I have heard.

Ik'Nali:

- An Illion elf adopted by a Wood Elven family. Traders from Lakeshore. Down to earth and with a rigid philosophy. It would be easy to befriend them from what I can tell. They appreciate people that are useful and keep up.

Harlow:

- A mess of a woman. A tenant who likely was not taught much in their childhood. I am unsure what family they have but.. It is clear to see that they have feelings for Leilani.

Huilotl:

- Very down to earth. I did not learn much about them besides that they are a mercenary.

Leilani:

- Beau's sibling. They are very energetic similar to her brother. If I had to guess I would say she does not have much experience outside of Lakeshore. She sees the world through very tinted glasses. This was obvious during a situation with the nameless one where they could not handle their emotions from the other not communicating properly. I wish I could describe it in any way other than childish.

Ptolemae:

- Not from lakeshore. Extremely down to earth but very critical of others doing things in a way they do not see as correct.

Joy:

- An alchemist rat. Intelligent for a rat. Quite so.

[Nameless]:

- Similar to Leilani. They have their name taken from them every so often so they choose a new one. Not impossible to get used to. Was unable to communicate properly or have Leilani communicate properly and ended up having a fit. I have described it previously.

They are all good people mother so I ask you not to worry. I find it strange you need to know any of this but I will not deny you the answers you will just pry from my mind when I see you next. I would rather get it out of the way now through letter.

Again. I know I have not written in 412 days. My days have been busy. I am not sorry.
