Greetings from Coravin, Coradel!
Over the past moon we have rescued a caravan and it's guards that were being held hostage by some bandits, my party cleared out a cellar full of rats, spoken to some belmorn soldiers, as one of our inkeeps suspected that Belmorn was preparing for a civil war, but instead all we found were a bunch of folks training for the upcoming dueling season who knew nothing of any internal conflicts, helped our neighbors in Illianor subdue an Illianor mafia leader in Vesperin, and my party members told me that when they were gathering special ingredients, grasses I think for the Syeneon mage school they encountered and killed a fairy, with whom we were already on poor standings. In other news, I have a society I'm building around a unique weapon of mine, the Batorch (Baton+torch) would you care to join?
