Eldar, 17th of seventhmoon.

Third week out in eldar it is now? Anyways, the first thing we did was try to patrol the swamp in Harmini. While we were waiting for the teleport, we needed to decide whether to try to stop fey from being converted to the volcano or rain, or if we were going to hunt down beasts. We decided to hunt beasts first, then fey if we found any trails.

On the first encounter on the way, we found a few eldar and i think also harmini people talking, but I dont remember what it was about. One of the harmini people who was a healer came with us, which greatly helped us. We fought some beasts and dropped them, but we were quickly dropped by skyfire beasts, as there were a lot of them, and they had divebomb inferno aura. We tried to heal each other, but it didn't work because of the sheer number of them. It was also swamp, inhibiting our ability to dodge the beast's attacks.

Then we went to deal with fey. On the first encounter on the way, the party got dropped by beasts. Then they retried the encounter. They got dropped and devoured by beasts, after which they gave up.

We also learned, I think from the healer, harmini's plan to stop the forest elidhu. They have their own elidhu of the shimmerglass lake, and they plan to make the lake reach the forest to hold back the rainforest spirit. The shimmerglass elidhu was also helping them stop the forest so far.
