Hello Once More!
Unfortunately, my message won't be of much use today. I woke up late, read the mission board, joined my party on a mission already underway, got lost, and waited in the Inn for their return. A few things of note: The news on the board was: Lights flicker on and off, many regions plunged into darkness. Panic and unrest grow, reports of fighting throughout the city and surrounding tunnel roads. I thought you'd have some... things to say about that. The party chose to pursue their own mission 'follow the tendril', but I don't really know what that was about because, like I said I missed the morning inn due to a malfunctioning alarm clock. I had another vision due to my temporal abilities: Fighting and fire across the city.
Best, and a spooky (but safe!) all hallows to you all,
~Amysri